THE PONTIGNANO – VISION CONFERENCE ON THE FUTURE OF EUROPE – THE EU’S MAN ON THE MOON MOMENT

DRAFT AGENDA (26th – 28th MAY 2022) - ORGANIZED BY THE UNIVERSITY OF SIENA AND VISION

We are living in a dramatic time. Years of existential threats and radical transformations. It is also a time when it becomes imperative to adapt institutions conceived for a more stable context to a century which increasingly seems defined by ever more frequent and intense crises.

The first two Vision conferences on the future of Europe¹ took place in October 2020 and June 2021, while the continent was struggling with the COVID-19 pandemic. The third conference is being organized while hundreds of thousands of families are besieged in Kiev, Odessa and other Ukrainian cities and while the continent deals with its largest refugee flow since 1945. For the first time since the early sixties a nuclear strike cannot be classified as a negligible possibility. And this is happening while the globalization machine was already in trouble thanks to the great pandemic freeze² and to the divisions between the West and China.

EU'S MAN ON THE MOON MOMENT

The third conference that Vision is organizing with the University of Siena, the participation of the European Liberal Forum, the Foundation for European Progressive Studies and the Wilfried Martens Centre for European Studies, is meant to be a scale up of the previous events and the consolidation of a project designed to create a permanent hub of ideas to reform the EU and to support the design and implementation of EU policies.

²Conclusions, pictures, press release and participants' names are available at <https://www.thinktank.vision/en/magazine/the-future-of-europe/taormina-messina-conference-the-manifesto> as far as the first conference in October 2020 and <https://www.thinktank.vision/en/magazine/the-future-of-europe/second-taormina-messina-conference> as far as the second in June 2021.

THE CONTEXT AND THE OBJECTIVES

During the last two years, Europe has changed at a never-before-seen pace:

The European Central Bank pumped into the markets more than 1,5 Trillion euros in the 15 months from March 2020 to November 2021: this pushed the cost of borrowing to such a low point that even States whose rating is near the bottom of the “investment grades” could finance extraordinary financial rescue packages at close to zero costs.

Political priorities were drastically twisted towards an ambitious “Green Deal” and bold targets to reduce by 2030 EU CO2 emissions of 55% vis-à-vis pre-industrial level which implies a profound challenge to banks, industries, cities, farmers. The decision to issue common debt to finance the 750 billion euro “Next Generation EU” was seen by some as the “Hamiltonian moment” which will affect the nature of the Union and eventually modify the stability and growth pact that constrains national fiscal policies.

In the last months history started running even faster and more dramatically: the response to the invasion of Ukraine has witnessed a never-seen-before unity of EU countries in a response made of economic sanctions which are being hardly felt in Russia and of which Europeans are ready to pay the price, and of an unprecedented deployment of weapons and other support to the country which suffered the aggression.

A lot is being achieved and yet the EU needs more and must absolutely avoid complacency with progress which may still be seen as too little and too slow when compared with the reality of a completely different new century. True, Europe seems to have been resilient enough to overcome the “dark hours” that appeared to threaten its very survival (the European debt crisis from 2009 to 2014, Brexit in 2016, the rise of populism, early divisions over the pandemic). And yet the entire institutional fabric of the Union still needs an urgent and radical updating to a context where crises are becoming much more frequent and violent.

In technology, Europe has fallen far behind in the battle for global digital leadership and innovation: if we consider the 143 companies whose market value is above 100 billion euro, one third were established in the last 50 years and none is European. In energy, the EU saw itself as a leader in climate adaptation but has now seen its entire energy model thrown up in the air by the schism with its main supplier, Russia. Moreover, at the same time as the Ukraine war is seen as a global battle between Democracy and Autocracy, inside the Member States there continues to be a severe challenge to the Rule of Law and in some cases the legitimacy of Democracy.

UNIVERSITÀ DI SIENA 1240

We thus need to answer to the challenge posed by the war at the borders of the Union to give substance to the old aspiration of a European foreign and security policy; to find a great leap forward in energy and climate innovation so as to end our dependence on imported fossil fuels; to transform in a very radical way the shape of our welfare system and define the terms of a new “health union” which is technically a pre-condition to the survival of an area of free circulation of people; to propose a new model to approach the Internet; to renew the European “lifestyle” finding a new balance between competitiveness and social protection. And yet, it is very difficult to do so with institutions that still depend on unanimity and without a proper European space for public debate.

History teaches us that after the global wars of the twentieth century, new “world orders” have been crafted. We believe that the time has similarly come for a fresh start. Sixty-five years ago, six governments were preparing the Rome Treaty. In June 2022, the think-tank Vision and the University of Siena will convene a three-days’ problem-solving event in the Certosa of Pontignano where forty intellectuals, policy makers, journalists, historians, and visionaries will gather to generate and discuss bold ideas which will be a follow up of the official Conference on the Future of Europe (COFE), as well as the State of the Union to be held in Florence by the European University Institute on 5th and 6th of May. It will provide a forum which is going to be more informal than the official COFE and a contribution to “crafting the future” (as for the Vision logo).

One of the distinctive features of the conference is in the approach we will use. We are convinced that overly complex questions like the “future of Europe” pose an intellectual challenge: we will try to find and develop viable solutions by assembling different skills, academic and professional backgrounds to share problem-solving and find a common language.

THE CONFERENCE AS A PROBLEM-SOLVING FORUM: THE METHOD AND THE KEY PEOPLE

This third conference will again feed institutions with fresh ideas on how to renew the European Union. The priorities of the two conferences in 2020 and 2021 were: to draft efficient EU policies on global digital platforms; promoting mechanisms so that a European identity/Demos and a European democracy can become a reality; to better coordinate healthcare systems at the European level; to elaborate on the idea of “clusters of integration” to overcome the paralysis of unanimity; to assess the NGEU to understand how to make it a fiscal lever for a stronger EU.

The Messina/ Taormina conference’s conclusions will be – together with the Vision concept paper and the work through which the Working Groups will be prepared – the starting point of the third conference that Vision is now organizing with University of Siena at the Certosa di Pontignano. The goal is also to confirm Siena/ Florence at the forefront of the European discourse and to make the Siena conference an annual gradually bigger event.

Following the model of the previous events, the outputs of the conference will be a general manifesto proposing a new method for integration and an action plan for each of the problems/priorities analyzed by each of the four-working groups.

The outputs will be shown in a presentation intended for European and national institutions and the media for engage public opinion (especially that of young generations).

Organizers of the conference are University of Siena (whose rector is Professor Francesco Frati³) and Vision, The Think Tank (whose Director is Francesco Grillo⁴).

Chairs of the conference are expected to be Sandro GOZI (European MEP for Renew Europe, former Italy's Secretary of State for European Affairs); Marta Dassù (ASPENIA ITALY Director, former Vice-Minister of Foreign Affairs), John Hooper (Correspondent for The Economist for Italy and the Vatican) and Annalisa Piras (Director of the "The Wake Europe Project" and of "The Great European Disaster Movie").

Our international media partner is envisaged to be The Economist (UK). Alongside, we will main Italian newspapers and main Italian TV broadcasters.

The Conference will be opened by local hosts (the Major of Siena and the President of the Tuscany Region). The program will continue with two plenary sessions which will frame the debate. Then, four working groups will be introduced by each working group's presenter before the participants divide into the four groups. Each will be moderated by one Chair who will develop the conclusions of the WG together with the introducer and one rapporteur. The rapporteur will then present the outcomes of the working groups to the plenary on day 2. The other five public plenary sessions will take place the days 2 and 3. The debates of all plenaries and working groups will feed into the general Conference manifesto.

⁴ The team at Vision also includes researchers Anais Eva Agnessi, Federica Fusco, Clara Donati and Antonella Camerino. Vision work was greatly supported also by Antonio Negro and Claudia De Sessa.
